RADICAL RADISH—This young German girl gazes in awe at a monstrous red radish grown by Joseph Schabert on a farm near Hamburg. The radish was the product of 28 years of experimentation.

VERY SMOOTH—It would seem that Australia's ace miller Herb Elliott can't be bothered combing his own hair, preferring the smoothing touch of Jean Fraser, artist and hair dresser. Actually, Miss Fraser is combing the hair of a wax dummy of Elliott in Madame Tussaud's Waxworks in London, England.

FLYING ROAD MAP—A new electronic navigation aid, built by Bendix-Decca and now being tested in the New York area, may help solve the traffic problem on congested airways and also be a boon to pilots in poor visibility conditions. In the system, a pictorial map, shown above mounted in a helicopter, unrolls during flight while an automatic stylus keeps constant track of the aircraft's position. In this case, the stylus (left center on map) shows the helicopter to be hovering over the East River, opposite the lower end of Manhattan.

Ruling to Be made on Homemade Ballots

HAMBURG, Ark. (AP)—A hearing will be held here Saturday to determine whether the Ashley County Board of Election Commissioners must certify results of an election at West Crossett held with homemade ballots.

Residents of the town voted 55-12 in the election Tuesday to permit the sale of beer for consumption off the premises where it was sold. They also elected a slate of municipal officials.

Furniture store clerk Darby Carter, elected mayor in the balloting, filed suit in Ashley Circuit Court yesterday seeking to force the election officials to certify the vote.

Faubus Against Abolishing Schools

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus yesterday promised strong opposition to any move by the Legislature to abolish the state's public school system. There has been talk of such a move as a last resort effort to prevent racial integration. But the governor said he would do everything he could to block such action if it came up. "I feel certain that a way will be found to return control of the school system to the people without disrupting the entire public school system," he said.

Date Fixed for Negro to Die

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus yesterday set Friday, Nov. 28, as date for the execution of condemned Negro rapist Luther Bailey. Bailey was convicted of the rape of a white widow at Little Rock in 1950. He lost appeals both to the Arkansas Supreme Court and to the U.S. Supreme Court. In his order Faubus said he could find no mitigating circumstances to justify a commutation or sentence.

U. S. Foreign Policy to Be Eyed by World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Newspapers around the world today put the U.S. foreign policy under the microscope in the light of the Democratic victory in Tuesday's election.

Some took the view that the Republican party was defeated on the issue of foreign policy. Other professed to see no change in foreign policy resulting from the election.

Berlin's newspapers—both East and West—said the U.S. voter lost confidence in the Eisenhower administration.

West Berlin papers said the reasons for the Republican defeat were: The recession, the Sherman Adams case, and diplomatic setbacks abroad, especially on the Quemoy question.

In East Berlin, the Communist party organ Neues Deutschland said the election proved the American public is tired of what it called Secretary of State Dulles' policy of "balancing on the brink of war." It denounced both Democrats and Republicans, saying that even though the Democrats have won there will be no real change in foreign policy.

In President Nasser's United Arab Republic province of Syria, Damascus papers said the vote would bring no radical changes in U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East.

In the Far East, the Chinese Nationalists papers in Taipei agreed there would be no drastic change in Washington's Far Eastern policy.

"Peking radio, broadcasting Red China's reaction, said 'the great defeat of the Republican party has reflected the serious failure and crisis of the U.S. foreign and domestic policies' but saw no major changes in foreign policy."

In Japan, the newspaper Nihon Keizai said the Democratic victory "may have been due to uneasiness among the U.S. people against Dulles policies in the Middle East, Formosa, the racial integration issue, decline in Eisenhower's leadership, the Sherman Adams case, and unemployment."

Quorum Court Can't Drop School Millage

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—County quorum courts can't lower school-millage tax rates approved by voters in school elections, the attorney general's office ruled today.

The opinion, written by Assistant Atty. Gen. Roy Finch Jr., went to W. H. White, superintendent of schools at Fayetteville.

The county quorum court is without authority to lower or raise millage rates approved by voters, the opinion said.

Finch quoted from a recent Arkansas Supreme Court decision in a Benton County case which said the duty of the quorum court in levying taxes was merely administrative.

Scientists to go Up in Balloon

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (AP)—A Navy balloon carrying two scientists will be launched Sunday near Rapid City, S.D., in an effort to learn whether there is enough water on the planet Mars to support plant life.

The Navy said Wednesday Cmdr. Malcolm D. Ross of the Office of Naval Research and Prof. John Strong of Johns Hopkins University hope to ride the balloon to 80,000 feet after it is launched at 9 a. m.

Using a 16-inch telescope, the balloonists hope to get a much sharper view of Mars than is possible from the earth's surface. They will be above much of the atmosphere and its water vapor.

If the launching is successful, the scientists will ride the sealed gondola-carrying balloon to earth in the Chicago area sometime Monday.

The Osage Indians vacated the area within the limits of present Arkansas in 1808.

Mrs. Knutson Being Sued by Husband

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Knutson, husband of Rep. Coya Knutson (D-Minn) has pending in federal court here a suit against his wife's executive secretary for $200,000 for alienation of affections and slander.

The action was filed Wednesday by Knutson's attorney, Benedict S. Fitzgerald, who said it had been prepared months ago but Knutson delayed filing so as not to influence the results of Tuesday's election.

Mrs. Knutson, a former school teacher who has served two terms in Congress, was defeated in the election.

The suit asks $100,000 from William Kjeldahl, 28, Mrs. Knutson's executive secretary, on each of the two counts. Fitzgerald said the next step will be to serve papers on Kjeldahl who he said is in Minnesota.

Knutson charged in the papers filed here that Kjeldahl interfered with his marital rights and conspired to injure Knutson in the enjoyment of the companionship of his wife. The papers say the slander allegation was based upon a reference that Kjeldahl had made to Knutson.

Mrs. Knutson could not be reached in Minnesota. An aide office in Moorhead, Minn., indicated Mrs. Knutson would have nothing further to say at present about the lawsuit.

Old Pals Succumb at Same Time

STREATOR, Ill. (AP) — Frank W. Liptak, 64, a state police sergeant, and Edward Fedash, 63, an auto mechanic, buddies for many years, were riding in Liptak's car when Fedash became ill and asked to be driven home.

En route, Fedash lapsed into unconsciousness. Liptak pulled into the Fedash driveway, hurried into the kitchen and asked Mrs. Fedash to summon a doctor.

At the kitchen door, Liptak swayed, then collapsed.

A few minutes later a physician pronounced both men dead, apparently of heart seizures.

New TV Station Opens at El Dorado

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — A new television station, described as one of the nation's most powerful, will begin operating here at 7 a.m. tomorrow. Its call letters are KTVL.

A station official, Fred Bandry, said today the station's 152-foot tower is one of the tallest in the world. It is located about 25 miles from the studios at Huttig, Ark., near the Louisiana line.

KTVL, owned by the Arkansas-Louisiana-Television Co. Inc., will operate on a power of 310,000 watts on Channel 10. It may be viewed in southern Arkansas and northern Louisiana. The station is an outgrowth of KRBB, an El Dorado station which will sign off the air late today, Bandry said.

Statement on Nuclear Policy Forthcoming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House promised an important statement today on United States policy covering suspension of nuclear weapons tests.

There was some reason to believe that the statement would deal with Soviet reaction to a U.S. proposal for a one-year suspension of nuclear weapons tests. The three powers now are meeting in Geneva, seeking to work out an international agreement to prohibit such tests.

The United States and Britain suspended their tests a week ago today as the meeting opened. They reserved the right, however, to resume testing if the Soviet Union fired more nuclear blasts.

The day before the suspension became effective, the Soviet government rejected the one-year ban. In a statement, the Soviet Union publicly reasserted its right to go on testing until the experimental shels equalled the total of those fired by the United States and Britain during the summer and fall.

United States officials expressed hope at the time, however, that the Soviet Union would in fact refrain from firing any more nuclear tests during the Geneva negotiations.

There has been no announcement, either by the Soviet Union or by this country, of any actual Soviet test firings since Oct. 31.

The Geneva talks were deadlocked during their first week. The Soviet Union has insisted first on an agreement to outlaw tests, to be followed by work on an international inspection system to police the agreement. The two Western countries have contended the inspection system should be agreed to as the first step.

Britain sought to break the deadlock Thursday with a proposal that discussions proceed on the assumption that a tacit test suspension already exists. It was argued that this could be extended indefinitely if progress toward international control is made at the Geneva talks.

No Republicans in Arkansas House

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas House of Representatives apparently will have no Republican members when it meets here in January—for the first time since 1935.

Usually there are from one to three Republican representatives—although there have been no Republican state senators in modern times.

The 1937 House had two Republicans—Rep. F. A. League of Carroll County and Rep. Quinton Clark of Newton County.

League left the Republican party after President Eisenhower used troops in the Little Rock school crisis last year and run Democrat.

Clark apparently was defeated for re-election by his Democratic opponent, W. D. Baker. The vote was 1,439 to 1,321 in favor of W. D. Baker with one box unreported.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov.-elect Nelson A. Rockefeller moved today to set up his administrative team and get it on the job.

A morning conference with Republican State Chairman W. Judson Morhouse, obviously was for the purpose of discussing such matters.

Rockefeller said he intended to consult with former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, and with other appointments to the gubernatorial staff.

Rockefeller said he expects to name his budget director before leaving Gov. Rockefeller's office.

This is the way that some of the nation's top designers work in wool for fall and winter. Wool plaid streamer coat (left) by Pauline Trigere is only slightly shaped to the body, is buttoned with double discs in matching plaid. Fringed scarf drapes gracefully from the neckline. Adele Simpson does (center) a red-and-green wool tweed ensemble with high rise skirt and brief jacket. Short overblouse is in dark green wool jersey. Necklace is in blending tones of red-and-green, what this designer calls her "tweed heads." Another Trigere design is this reversible wool travel coat (right) in black-and-white check on one side and gray tweed on the other. Pockets are passport-sized and coat has big cape collar. The designer shows this coat and skirt with black, high-necked sweater.

For autumn evenings ahead, here are two beautiful dinner dresses that could go dancing, too. Warp silk print in muted red is used (left) for dress with rounded skirt and high curved bodice. Lace shades silk satin (right) in a dress that's leveled and embroidered in shades from brandy to creme de cacao. Dress has shaped midriff of velvet. Both designs are by Nat Kaplan.

THE MOSCOW LINE—With the Paris fashion openings in full swing, Russia comes up with its own show of home-grown styles in the state-run department store GUM. The evening gowns above are somewhat dated by Western style standards.

DOROTHY DIX Couple Ought to Settle Where Chances Are Best

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I am a senior, and a gay student, at the university in my home town. I have been dating a graduate student, who lives several hundred miles from here. We plan to become engaged in the spring and will marry next summer after we are graduated. He comes from a large, clannish family which has been settled in the same town for generations. They expect Rob to settle there, too, after he marries. They tell me it is the proper thing for a young couple to settle in the man's home town. This I've never heard before. Business prospects in Rob's line would be much better here, where we've both established many firm friendships. And he prefers it to his home town. In fact, he's been attending school for several years and has no friends back home. Is it necessary for us to comply with his family's wishes and live in a town we both dislike? This decision has been the only flaw in our courtship. — Fran J.

Dear Fran: You belong where ever Rob has the best chance of making a good living at what he wants to do. You can adjust your social life anywhere. Make the decision fairly. Don't be influenced by the fact that you want to stay near your family and our friends. There are worse things than living among in-laws. They have even been known to be handy, at times.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My brother was recently sent to prison for eleven months. The family has been deeply hurt and embarrassed. We don't want any one to know about his predicament. The story we tell is that he's in a hospital. Somehow the truth got leaked out and it has been accused of telling it. Now everyone ignores me. — Mrs. J. R.

Dear Mrs. J. R.: Trying to conceal the facts was a foolish thing to do. A story like this is bound to come out. Too many people have access to the truth. It seems to me that as a family you have enough big troubles, without manufacturing little ones. In time of trouble a family should stick very close together. Impress this on your relatives.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

Last summer I met a very charming young man and we had several dates. Every time he came to see me he brought an expensive gift. Mother and I both objected but he was so persuasive that I kept them. Last week I found out he is married. A friend learned about his marriage from someone in his home town and when I asked him point blank, he admitted it. Fortunately my emotions weren't involved too much. I guess my pride is hurt worse than my heart. The problem that faces me is: what to do with these gifts? — No Gold Digger.

Dear Girl: Return them. Who wants to keep unhappy memories alive?

Dear Dorothy Dix:

All my friends, even my best friend, think I should like boys more than I do. I don't go out on dates. I'm not interested. I'm going to be a fashion designer and spend my free time studying and reading about fashions. I never even think of boys and so my friends think I'm crazy. All the other girls are so boy crazy they barely make passing grades. Mother agrees that I have time. I'm 14, attractive and would have no trouble getting dates if I wanted them. — Vera.

Dear Vera: While a 14-year-old girl who isn't interested in boys or dates is odd enough to cause comment, she's not queer enough to create a commotion. Don't let the boy-crazy girls force you into anything. You're all right as you are. And good luck in the fashion designing line.

Two Workmen Are Killed by Slide

STILETZ, Ore. (AP) — A hillside covered with logs and huge rocks tumbled down Thursday on four men clearing an earlier slide from a mountain logging road.

Two workmen were caught and killed by the slide. Another was buried but dug his way out. The fourth was pelted with rocks but scampered to safety.

The giant slide—300 feet wide and 800 feet long—buried and killed Harry Norton, 50, and Peter Jacobs, 44, under three feet of mud and debris.

Donnie Olmatt, about 30, jumped under his tractor. The tractor was buried but he dug his way out.

Jim Bergen, about 30, was working when he saw the slide coming. "I slapped Jacobs on the shoulder and said 'Let's go' — run," Bergen said.

Bergen said he, Jacobs and Norton began running along the road. "I ran 100 yards," he said. "I heard a big roar behind me. And then I was pelted with small rocks. When I looked back I was the only one there. The slide had just missed me."

Five hours later a crew of men found the bodies of Jacob and Norton.

Killer Doesn't Care About Girl Friend

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Killer Charles Starkweather says he doesn't care whether his ex-girlfriend Carl Ann Fugate lives or dies.

But testimony of the 19-year-old himself, condemned to death today as the most damaging to date against Carl, 35, charged with first-degree murder on the identical counts on which Starkweather was convicted.

Starkweather completed a dramatic two-day appearance at Carl's trial Thursday. Prosecutors expected to rest their case today after introduction of a statement taken from Carl after his capture. Its contents have not previously been divulged.

He disowned as "a bunch of hogwash" his earlier statements which portrayed her as an unwilling helper.

He lied to protect the girl, he said.

In fact, he related, some stories he told were fabricated totally by Carl and himself while they lived together for several days at Carl's home after Starkweather killed three members of Carl's family.

Carl is charged with aiding and abetting Starkweather in the shooting of Robert Jensen, Bennett, Neb. schoolboy Jensen is one of Starkweather's 11 admitted victims.

MINK'S MATTRESS

HAYWARD, Wis. (AP) — Bedding for mink is the by-product of a real factory's manufacture of medical swab sticks. The Hayward Wood Products Co. uses white burlap to make swab sticks and found it had a lot of shavings left over. Then a mink rancher tried the shavings as bedding for his mink. Now the wood company has more orders for mink bedding than the swab machines can produce. So it is planning to install another machine — just to turn out shavings.

high rates for the longer and wider American 1939 models.

Pure economics, said R. B. Duggert, Jr., president of the Washington Parking Assn., in announcing that the small machines will have specially reserved space and rates about a third less at one of his 17 parking facilities. He has plans to extend the system to other lots.

Duggert figured 40 of the little fellows will fit into the space needed for 25 of what are now considered normal-size American cars.

No car larger than 40 by 11 feet and 50 inches high, he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Little autos are going to get a price break in some downtown Washington parking lots.

The move is a switch from the recent talk in such places as New York and St. Louis about special

THE STORY: It is raining and Katherine is trapped on the roof, where she is hiding to escape from Paul, her stepfather. Katherine knows Paul murdered her mother and attempted to make it look like a swimming accident.

Chapter XVII

She didn't realize that she was falling asleep, that the world of horrible realities was slipping away from her. But the night was relaxed. She had been unable to sleep under the sunbath, but the rain acted like a lullaby, tapping monotonously, bathing, numbing. She came awake suddenly. There was no chance of enjoying the leisurely pleasures of assembling her faculties. She had dropped off to sleep slowly, insensibly, without knowing it. She had betrayed her vigil. She raised her head and looked around. It was much darker than it had been before, and to a second glow, wondering if she had slept all through the night and were now waking up to the dawn. But the stronger light was coming from behind the roof toward the west. There were voices inside, and then Aunt Millicent's came up clearly, saying to Amy, "She must have gone down the beach to visit somebody, and decided to stay till the rain stopped." "She'd have called to tell us." "Maybe she forgot. Or maybe she's decided to stay and have dinner with Mr. Wetherby. She likes him."

Amy said stubbornly, "I know her. She would have called." And then Paul's voice, saying indifferently, "Oh, don't worry about her. We'll just have to go for her when she gets home. It she hasn't had her dinner."

Amy sounded reluctant. She said, undecidedly, "Well . . ."

"Yes, of course. That's the thing to do."

The voices drifted away, leaving nothing behind them but the sound of the rain.

Katherine looked at her watch. It said 10 minutes to seven. She held it to her ear. It was still ticking. The rain hadn't hurt it, anyway.

She felt cramped, and unendurable, wondering if she had slept all through the night and were now waking up to the dawn. But the stronger light was coming from behind the roof toward the west.

There were voices inside, and then Aunt Millicent's came up clearly, saying to Amy, "She must have gone down the beach the surface. The black shadow on the pavement was smudged, indistinct; it might have been Aunt Millicent; it might have been Paul.

And then the shadow moved. Its arms waved in the reflection. The person in the doorway was lighting a cigarette. Whoever it was had not moved away, but was still looking out into the rain. And as something in the shadow's position shifted, Katherine knew that it was Aunt Millicent.

Katherine steeled herself. She leaned out as far as she could beyond the edge of the roof, and said softly — wondering if the sound would carry through the rain — or just how far it would carry: "Aunt Millicent."

The shadow moved again. It was looking around; and then Aunt Millicent's voice drifted up: "Katherine"

"Yes."

"Are you outside?"

"But why don't you come inside where are you? What are you doing?"

Katherine said, "Shhh," again, and then as distinctly as she could, trying still to keep her voice just above a whisper: "I can't get down. I'm on the roof. Come and help me."

And then, at last, with escape so close to her, she could no longer control herself; she began to cry while the rain poured down her face.

The shadow disappeared for a moment. Aunt Millicent's voice floated up, a sound of purpose in the drifting rain, "Just let me get a coat." Almost as soon as she was gone, it seemed she was back again. Katherine leaned forward again and heard her say, "Darling! Look at you! What on earth have you been doing?"

Katherine shook her head. She whispered loudly, trying to make her voice sound forceful, assured, "I can't get down without a ladder."

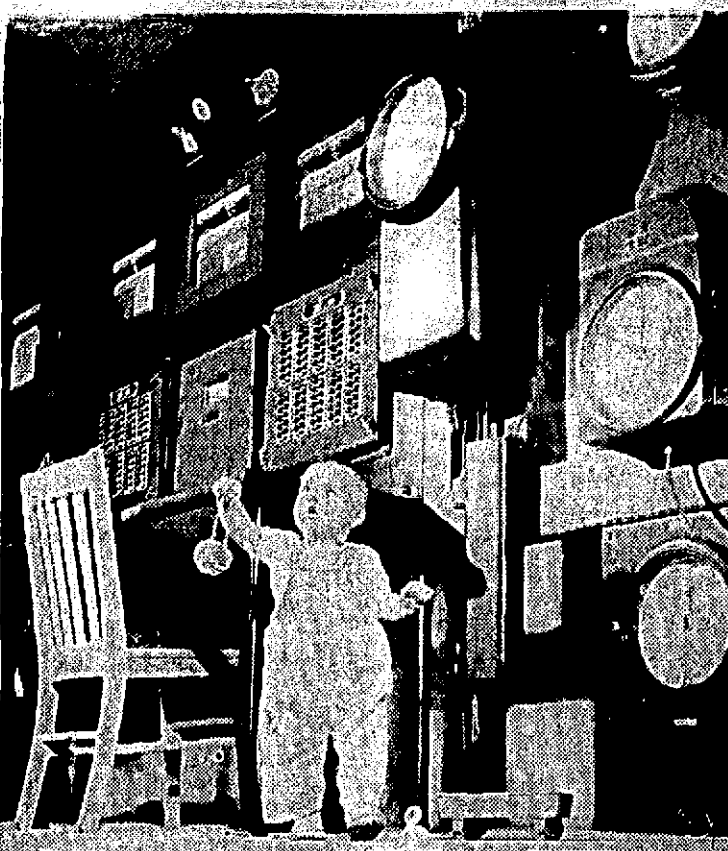

Some of Aunt Millicent's confidence returned. She said, "But darling, it's not far at all. Just jump right on down and I'll catch you. It isn't more than 12 or 13 feet."

Previously the AAA held Central and Hall athletes ineligible under a transfer rule but today's decision declared that the transfer rule would become invalid for these athletes if there was no public high school in the Little Rock district by Dec.

The ruling made no distinction between public and private schools.

However, students who already have transferred to another school must remain at that school or transfer to one of the new private schools in the Little Rock district to retain eligibility.

The AAA said these private schools may remain ineligible for one semester and participate in the AAA program by joining the association.
